KEYWORDS: European Union, reform, political discourse, thematic discourse analysis

SUGGESTED DATE OF EMPLOYMENT: 1 June 2026

CONTRACT TYPE: Contract of employment (full time)

PROJECT DESCRIPTION

EUDIS is a political science research project examining the transnational and multilevel political discourse on EU institutional reform. It focuses on how citizens' representatives – Members of the European Parliament (MEPs), Members of National Parliaments (MPs), and national executive actors – (de)politicize, (re)contextualize, and (de)legitimize (the need for and scope of) EU institutional reform, including treaty change, in the context of recent geopolitical crises and shifts. The project is grounded in discursive institutionalism and applies mixed-methods research design combining qualitative and quantitative approaches to discourse and content analysis in a comparative (multi-level and cross-country) perspective.

JOB DESCRIPTION

The successful candidate will be appointed as a Postdoctoral Researcher (Assistant Professor) in the Institute of Political Studies of the Polish Academy of Science (Chair for European Studies) and will contribute substantively to the empirical, methodological, and analytical components of the EUDIS project. The postdoctoral researcher will work under the supervision of the Principal Investigator, prof. Karolina Borońska-Hryniewiecka and in cooperation with other project collaborators. He/she is expected to take an active role in data collection, coding, analysis, publication, and dissemination of research results. To this end the researcher will participate in project meetings, workshops, and dedicated international conferences and be actively involved in the academic life of the Institute of Political Studies.

WORKING CONDITIONS

- 36-month full-time postdoctoral position in a renowned research institution
- Flexible working modes (online/hybrid)
- Monthly salary: PLN 8,000–9,700 gross (1900-2300 EUR)
- Flexible working arrangements (remote/hybrid). The Institute offers flexible working hours and promotes work-life balance.
- Opportunity to conduct research in a dynamic international environment, in collaboration with external partners

The Institute is an employer committed to promoting equal opportunities in accordance with the principles of the European Charter for Researchers.

FORMAL REQUIREMENTS

- PhD (see additional information below) in Political Science, European Studies, or a closely related field (e.g. International Relations, Sociology)<sup>1</sup>
- Submission of the following required documents electronically to politic@isppan.waw.pl (email subject: "Recruitment: EUDIS PROJECT"):
  - A cover letter (job application) addressed to the Institute Director outlining the candidate's profile and methodological experience (see requirements below);
  - A curriculum vitae, including a detailed list of publications, research projects, research internships, conference presentations, and language certificates;
  - Contact details of two researchers/scientists who are willing to provide references for the candidate;
  - Electronic versions of the two most important publications the candidate considers representative of their scientific achievements, or an explanation for their absence;

---

<sup>1</sup> The mandatory formal criterion for admission to this position is obtaining a doctoral degree in the year of employment (2026) in the project or within the 12 years prior to January 1 2026.

- A copy of candidate's doctoral diploma or a certificate of the prospects of obtaining a doctoral degree in the year of employment in the project (2026);
- A declaration of acceptance of the competition terms and conditions applicable at the Institute of Political Studies of the Polish Academy of Sciences;
- A declaration of consent to the processing of your personal data by the Institute of Political Studies of the Polish Academy of Sciences (attached);

SUBSTANTIVE REQUIREMENTS

The following position is particularly suitable for a scientist with solid methodological training in content analysis and political discourse analysis in the field of political science, European studies or sociology, possessing in particular:

- Good knowledge (ideally documented by publications) of the institutional system, decision-making processes, and political dynamics of the EU (experience in political parties, political representation, political discourse, or democratic legitimacy is an asset);
- Ability to acquire, collect and select data for content and discourse analysis;
- Proven knowledge of qualitative methods such as content analysis and discourse analysis, including knowledge of coding and using dedicated data analysis software (e.g., ATLAS.ti, MAXQDA, NVivo);
- Knowledge of quantitative methods and techniques in the field of basic and intermediate statistical methods (e.g., regression analysis, descriptive analysis), including experience using statistical software such as R, Stata, SPSS, or Python;
- Excellent command of written and spoken English (knowledge of Polish is not required);
- Previous international scientific publications and conference experience;
- Ability to work independently and collaboratively in an international research environment.

DESIRED ADDITIONAL QUALIFICATIONS

- Experience conducting and transcribing qualitative interviews;
- Familiarity with large media databases (e.g., Factiva or LexisNexis)
- Familiarity with various data collection techniques (e.g. web scraping)

SELECTION PROCEDURE

The recruitment and selection process for research positions at the Institute is described in detail in the Rules for Conducting Competitions for Research Positions at the Institute of Political Studies of the Polish Academy of Sciences. The Institute encourages representatives of underrepresented groups, particularly women and people with disabilities, to submit applications.
